Keyboard/piano lessons

Please can we remind parents of children that have lessons with Mrs Sadler that their fees are now due. Thank you

Nut free school

Please can we remind you that we are a nut free school. Some children have been bringing in nut based food products to Mill Lane in their packed lunches this week. We have a child who has a severe nut allergy at Mill Lane which means this is extremely dangerous for them if they come into contact with the food items. Please make sure children do not have chocolate spreads or nut style bars in their lunch boxes. Thank you.

Toys/games

Please can we remind parents that children should not be bringing toys or games into school. There seems to be a lot of beyblades, squishies, cards etc turning up at school recently which can cause upset if they are lost or damaged. Any toys that are brought in will be kept safely with the class teacher and will need to be collected by parents at the end of the day.

How Hill Payment

The second deposit for How Hill is now overdue, please can you pay this as soon as possible please.

Letters/slips

We sent out a lot of information last week with the newsletter. Please make sure you are aware of what was sent as there are return slips and payments that need to be made.

Our value this half term is Humility.

In Open the Book today we heard the story of King David Dances. King Saul had died and David became King. King

David thought a new King should live in a palace and decided it should be built between two cities. But there was a problem. One of the cities, Jerusalem, had a very high wall. The city was already occupied by the Jebusites, but King David knew this was the best place for the new palace to be built. He thought the King of so many tribes should live in the middle of the two cities. King David knew of a secret tunnel under the wall, so one night led his followers through the tunnel. Once King David had made it to the other side of the tunnel, the city gates were open and Jerusalem was theirs! Everyone was happy and celebrated. Craftsmen and builders set about building a new palace for King David to live in. The Palace was beautiful and King David was pleased. One day King David thought about going on a journey to find the Arc of the Covenant. He wanted to remind the people of the importance of following God and knowing that God is always with them. King David and his followers went through the wilderness and found the Arc of the Covenant. This was a special box that acted as a symbol to remind people that God is always with them. As King David's procession made its way back to the city, the people celebrated and King David danced. King David wanted the people to remember that as long as you follow God's way all will be well.
