Murderous Maths: Do You Feel Lucky?
&
Floodland

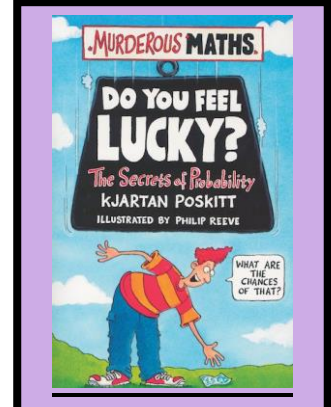

English

This week we will be continuing to write in different styles in reaction to events in Floodland such as letters, persuasion and poetry.

Maths

This week we will be focusing on the language associated with probability and testing out the laws of probability for different events.

Geography

We will be focusing on using statistics relating to the weather, population and elevation as outlined in the story of Floodland. We will be using charts and graphs to record and then analyse the data that we collect.

Maths Homework

Play "Rock, paper, scissors" fifty times – you could do this with different people throughout the week. Record which item wins each time. Does one of the items win more often than the others? If so why might that be?
